GTMO Says Goodbye

Nearly 47 years with one employer is an accomplishment under any circumstances, but for Joseph Thompson it meant travelling from one culture to another. Mr. Thompson made his last trip from his home in Guantanamo City, through the Northeast Gate and to his job at the Navy Exchange last week. As one of the few remaining commuter employees at Guantanamo Bay, he has seen all of GTMO's contemporary history during that time and has watched the base transit through many evolutions.

July 31st Thompson passed through the gate with his fellow commuters (below) after receiving parting gifts and farewells from his friends at GTMO.

Fire Strikes GTMO Kitchen

From the Guantanamo Bay Fire Department

It was a bright sunny Guantanamo Bay kind of day, the type we all like to enjoy early in July, with just one exception. A fire caused by unattended cooking reared its ugly head, devouring the kitchen in a local home. One occupant was home at the time. He evacuated the other residents of the house to a safe location, but decided to go back to fight the fire himself.

Less than ten minutes later he was in the ambulance on the way to the hospital suffering from smoke inhalation. This time the occupant survived; the next occupant may not. Smoke inhalation kills thousands of people every year, because they think it is safe to go back into a burning building.

In the 2000/2001 time frames, over $11,532,974,322 of U.S. Navy property was involved in structural fire emergencies. These fires resulted in 5 serious injuries and $661,115.00 in direct government property damage. Those fires also resulted in over $941,095 additional dollar damages to the personal property of Sailors and their families.

Historically, one (1) out of every four (4) U. S. Navy base fires started in the kitchen. At Naval Station Guantanamo Bay, approximately 3 out of 4 fires are kitchen fires. Here are some critical steps you can take to protect your home and love ones:

- ◆ Keep cooking areas clean and clear of combustibles (i.e. potholders).
- ◆ Never leave cooking food on the stovetop unattended.
- ◆ Keep children away from cooking areas by creating a “kid-free zone” around the stove.
- ◆ Turn pot handles inward so they can’t be bumped and so children can’t grab them.
- ◆ Wear short, close fitting or tightly rolled sleeves when cooking.

◆ Always keep an oven mitt and lid handy. If a small grease fire starts in a pan, put on an oven mitt and smother the flames by carefully sliding the lid over the pan. Turn off the burner. Don’t remove the lid until it is completely cool.

◆ Never pour water on a grease fire and never discharge a fire extinguisher directly onto a pan fire. It can spray or shoot burning grease around the kitchen, actually spreading the fire.

◆ If there is an oven fire, turn off the oven and keep the door closed to prevent flames from burning you and your clothing.

◆ If there is a microwave fire, keep the door closed and unplug the microwave if safe to do so. If a fire occurs, get out of the house and go to a neighbor’s house to call 9-1-1. Don’t re-enter the the home for any reason.

◆ Call 9-1-1 even if you think the fire is out. The cause of all fires needs to be investigated for faulty equipment and to insure the fire is out for good.

NEWS BRIEFS

Red Cross Needs Volunteers

The American Red Cross is looking for volunteers for the Disaster Exercise next week.

We need adult and teen volunteers to play the part as disaster victims on August 14.

Volunteers are also needed are for the Rehabilitation Area serving refreshments and providing “Red Cross Tender Care” to Emergency Responders.

You don’t have to be a long term volunteer for this special event! Call 5060 before August 12.

Talent Show Participants Wanted

Do you consider yourself a singer or musician? Have a talent you want to showcase? Wish you could try out for “American Idol,” but can’t make it to the states for the tryouts? Why not become a “GTMO Idol” instead?

The Senior Petty Officers’ Association is sponsoring a GTMO Talent Show and is seeking participants willing to share their talents with the community.

Auditions are Friday, August 15 from 11:30am to 1pm, and Saturday, August 23 from 1 to 3pm. Auditions both days are at the Windjammer.

If you cannot make the audition times, contact CTA1 Barnes or IS1 Gallops at 4230, or call 5111 to arrange for an audition day and time.

The event is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 12, starting at 6pm in the Windjammer Ballroom. Admission price is $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Proceeds from the event support the SPOA high school scholarship fund and annual Pumpkin Patch.

Any talent is welcome, but should be suitable for families.

Are you more of a planner than a performer? Come to the next SPOA meeting August 15, 11:30am, at the Acey Deucey Club in the Windjammer to see how you can help.

GTMO Celebrates Jamaican Independence

Celebrating 41 years of Jamaican independence, GTMO residents gathered at the Windjammer on August 4th to enjoy authentic Jamaican cuisine and pay tribute to Jamaican employees who work hard to make GTMO a wonderful place to live.

Left: Chairman of the evening's events, Mr. Burkett welcomes those in attendance.

Right: Naval Station Commanding Officer, presents a Certificate of Appreciation to Lt. Raymond Reid of the Guantanamo Bay Fire Department for his faithful and dedicated service to the residents of GTMO.

Jamaican Independence Day - August 6, 1962

From the National Library of Jamaica Website,
www.nlj.org.jm

Heralded by songs, dances and shouts of jubilation through the streets of Kingston and all Jamaica, the independence sun dawned bright and clear on August 6, 1962. Bells swelled, and people gathered at schools, churches, homes, parks and community centers for marches, dances, concerts, fireworks and parties.

Eleven o'clock on this night marked the beginning of the most historic moment of Jamaica's independence celebrations. On this occasion her Royal Highness Princess Margaret, the Earl of Snowdon, the leaders of government and all the officials along with 20,000 Jamaicans came together at the National Stadium to witness the birth of a new nation.

Then at one half minute to midnight the lights went out and darkness descended upon the stage as the Union Jack which had flown in Jamaica for 307 years slowly slithered down the flagstaff for the last time.

In one historic moment the lights flooded the stage and for the first time in history the Black, Green and Gold flag of Jamaica proudly ascended the pole, once and for always, symbolizing Jamaica's independence and nationhood. The people looked up with pride. Fireworks went up and there were cheers of jubilation as the long desired day had finally arrived. Jamaicans were no longer British subjects, but citizens of their own country.

Craig Basel of MWR was pleased to have the opportunity to thank all the Jamaican workforce who help MWR provide "star service to" GTMO residents.

Delroy Sewell accepts a Certificate of Appreciation from Capt. Jason Orlich, JTF-GTMO, for his help in making the U.S. Army Ball successful.

GTMO's National Night Out

The Emergency Vehicle Parade through base housing kicked off GTMO's 2003 National Night Out. Children gathered in their yards to catch treats distributed by emergency services personnel from atop their vehicles.

As the parade concluded at Cooper Field residents began arriving to view the attractions, play games and enjoy the food.

National Night Out is an annual event throughout the U.S. and at U.S. military bases around the world.

In recent years, GTMO's event, presented by the base security department, has won national recognition and hopes are that this year's event continues that tradition.

One very important, cuddly and recognizable visitor during National Night Out is McGruff the Crime Dog who teaches children how to stay safe and to help "take a bite outta crime!" Every time you looked, the giant pup was hugging a child.

National Night Out gives GTMO's emergency services a chance to strut their stuff and show off lots of neat gadgets to the community.

It's also an annual reminder to residents that we have some of the Navy's best stationed here to keep us safe and secure.

August is National Immunization Month

August is recognized as National Immunization Awareness Month (NIAM). The goal of NIAM is to increase awareness about immunizations across the life-span, from infants to the elderly.

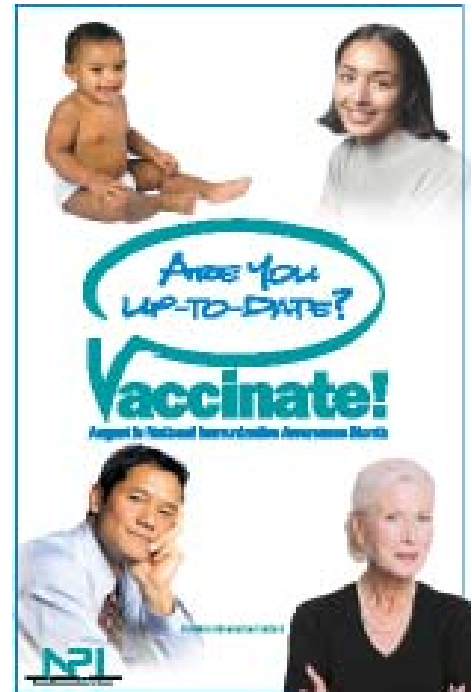

This year's campaign is focused around the theme, "Are You Up to Date? Vaccinate!," to remind people of all ages of the importance of immunization. August is the perfect time to remind family, friends, co-workers, and those in the community to catch up on their vaccinations. Parents are enrolling their children in school, students are entering college, and health care workers are preparing for the upcoming flu season.

Vaccines have been used since the 1700s and are among the great public health successes. Vaccines serve as a protection from at least 14 different diseases that once were common in the United States. Despite the effectiveness of vaccines against potentially fatal illnesses, children and adults still die each year from these preventable diseases.

Take advantage of NIAM to encourage patients, family and others in the community to check their medical records and remind them of the importance of being up-to-date on their immunizations and the immunizations of their dependents, young and old. It is especially important in light of the vaccines that were either delayed or deferred in 2001 and 2002 because of vaccine shortages. During the vaccine shortage period, the following seven vaccines were delayed or deferred: DTaP, hepatitis B, Hib, MMR, varicella, pneumococcal conjugate (PCV), and Td.

Many of the immunizations that kids now take for granted, didn't even exist when many of us were children. It's worth checking out what is available and what you need. The diseases that these vaccines protect against are pretty harmful and better off avoided.

FFSC's I&R: Your Information Station

Where do I register my car? Is there a preschool program my children can attend? Are there churches in this community? Where should my spouse seek employment?

Do any of these questions sound familiar? If so, you should check out the Fleet and Family Support Center's (FFSC) Information & Referral (I&R) Program.

I&R is the Navy's official search engine, serving as the middleman for information. Sailors and their families no longer have to hunt down information, because I&R can do it for them.

Whether you've just relocated or want to find more information about your community, I&R is prepared to provide comprehensive information about programs, services, volunteer opportunities and resources that are available to you.

With the complex maze of services offered to Sailors and their families, sometimes you need help navigating the system. That's why this program was established.

Research shows that for every minute you spend with I&R, it would take you an average of six minutes to track down the same information. So 10 minutes with I&R could save an hour of your own time making calls, doing research and running around from place to place.

I&R staff are well-equipped to answer your questions and, if needed, refer you to resources in the community. The I&R program helps Sailors and their family members find out what is offered and how to access the services they want or need.

I&R is one of the core services of the FFSC. The program provides the following information and more for military communities inside and outside of the continental United States.

- ◆ Schools and educational services
- ◆ Social services
- ◆ Child care
- ◆ Temporary and permanent housing
- ◆ Emergency services
- ◆ Health and medical services
- ◆ Volunteer opportunities
- ◆ Youth services
- ◆ Recreation

By calling or visiting the Center with your questions, you'll save a lot of time trying to track down information yourself.

The I&R staff members have answers to the most commonly asked questions right at their desks. I&R will respond to your questions in one of three ways:

- 1) Provide you with the answer.
- 2) Refer you to a resource in the community.
- 3) Research to find out the answer

With the help of I&R, Sailors are more effective in the workplace and their families' stress levels are reduced.

The program reinforces the Navy's commitment to take care of our own.

The FFSC also provides operational, mobility and counseling support to service members and their families, helping them adapt to Military life. FFSC services are a benefit free to all service members, single or married, including activated Reservists, retirees and Department of Defense civilians in overseas locations.

For more information on the FFSC and programs like I&R, call 4141 or visit FFSC on the Web at www.persnet.navy.mil/pers66. You can also call the Center's 24-hour information and referral hotline at (800) FSC-LINE (372-5463).

DoD, DOL Partner to Support Military Families

Special release from the U.S. Department of Defense

Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld and Secretary of Labor Elaine L. Chao, recently signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) at a ceremony at the Pentagon to promote cooperative efforts between the departments, to improve the quality of life of servicemembers and their families, and to contribute to the quality of the American labor force.

The MOU provides a framework for a broad range of continuing efforts between the departments, including three important areas: connections to the job markets in America's communities, involvement with labor laws that affect reemployment (i.e., training, unemployment compensation), and interest in states' reciprocal licensing and certification requirements needed to qualify for employment.

"All of our people who serve are volunteers, and we owe them a great debt of gratitude," said Rumsfeld. If there's anything we can do to improve their lives and create a circumstance that's better for them is just enormously important ... and this is one of them."

The agreement will help military spouses establish careers despite having to transition among job markets due to frequent relocations. It will also strengthen DoL's efforts to support returning Reservists' job searches, employ America's Job Bank to recruit for military jobs, expand the Department of Labor's employment infrastructure to support military spouse employment, and encourage corporate America to hire returning Reservists and military spouses.

"We are so proud of our men and women in uniform," said Chao. "Now it's our turn to support them by providing separating servicemembers, military spouses and veterans with the help they need to succeed in the workforce. We are committed to connecting these men and women with employers eager to tap their dedication, talent and skills."

Examples of the collaboration between DoD and DoL include: establishing "one stop career centers" near major military installations (Norfolk, Va.; San Diego; Fort Campbell, Ky.), expanding opportunities for Reservists and military spouses to access training and education grants, exploring options with states to offer unemployment compensation to military spouses, working across states to improve reciprocity for state certifications and licensing requirements to reduce employment lags, and targeting unemployment by establishing a military spouse unemployment index.

Perigrine Falcon

By Paul Schoenfeld
Natural Resources Manager

The Peregrine Falcon (Falco peregrinus) is another true Falcon occasionally seen at GTMO where they are considered uncommon winter residents. Their scientific name peregrinus translates to traveler and they are sometimes called duck hawks because ducks often fall prey to Peregrines. This is probably the most well known of the North American falcons due to its former status as an endangered species and its fast flight ability. As a group, Falcons are the fastest birds of prey and Peregrines are the fastest of the Falcons. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reports that Peregrines in a stoop (their hunting tactic where they dive on their prey) can exceed two hundred miles per hour. Peregrines are found throughout North America, including urban areas, and in other parts of the world. There are three separate subspecies of Peregrine found in North America. Peregrines from Alaska, Canada and Greenland usually migrate to the Caribbean and Central/South America for winter. Peregrines that nest in more southern areas usually do not migrate very far and some do not migrate at all.

Peregrines are 20 - 21 inches long with wingspans of approximately 40 inches. Adults have slate blue-gray wings. Their backs have dark bars and their undersides are pale. They have white faces with a broad black stripe across the cheek. Juveniles have dark undersides and are brown. Females are usually larger than males.

Peregrines are very efficient predators and prey on birds in flight. They soar high above their intended victim, enter their "stoop" and literally punch their prey in mid-air. After the initial strike, they are capable of turning back and catching their prey before it falls to the ground. Prey species include songbirds, shorebirds, and ducks. In urban areas, Peregrines feed heavily on pigeons and starlings and are considered beneficial pest control agents.

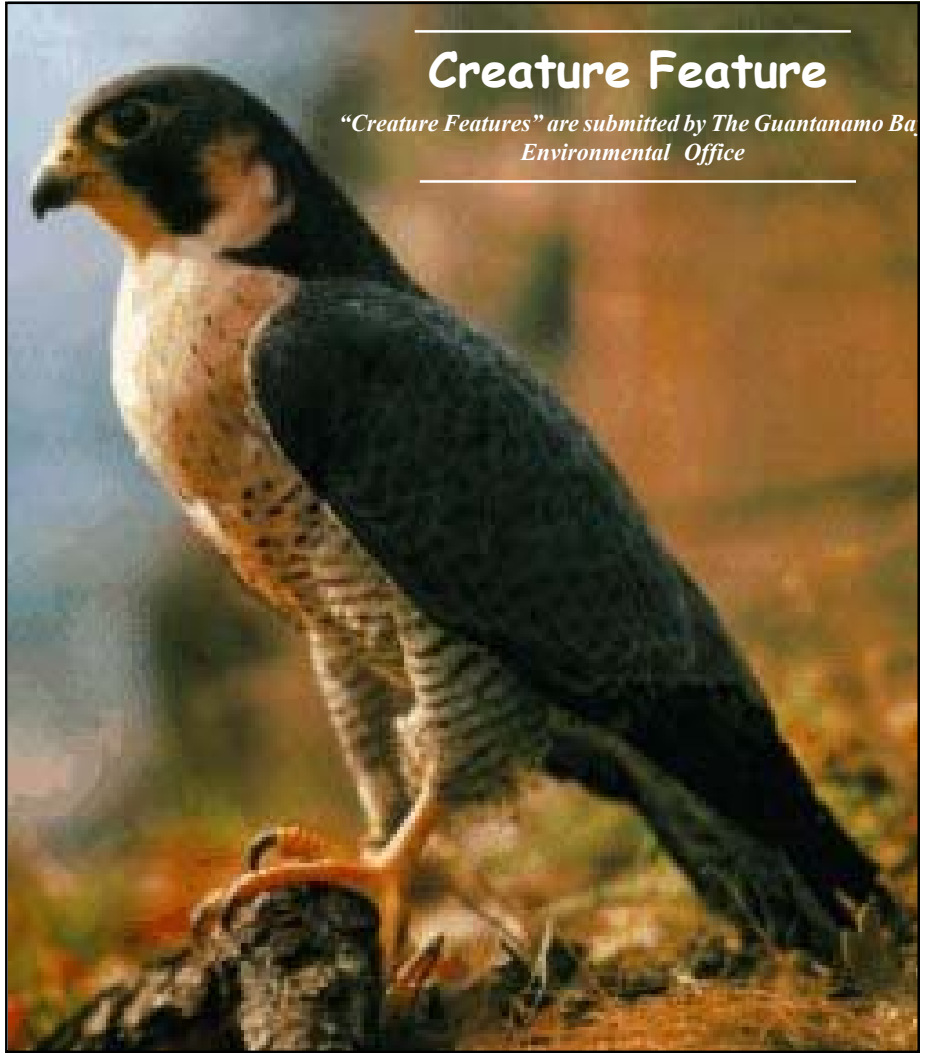

Peregrines favor mountain ranges, river valleys, and coastal areas. Nests are normally little more than a scrape in the gravel on a cliff ledge, but are sometimes found in tree cavities or nests built by other birds. Urban skyscrapers, towers, and bridges also provide nest sites and large numbers of Peregrines nest on these structures throughout North America. Peregrines reach sexual maturity when they are 2 years old. Males arrive at a nest site and attract females with acrobatic aerial displays. Females lay an average of 4 eggs and both parents aggressively defend the nest and young however, they will abandon the nest if frequently disturbed.

Peregrines were formerly listed on the Federal List of Endangered Species. The pesticide DDT, widely used in the 50's and 60's, was found to bio-accumulate in Peregrines from feeding on birds who ate DDT contaminated insects and seeds. Once in the Peregrine's tissues, DDT metabolized into a compound called DDE which interfered with eggshell formation. Eggs laid by DDE contaminated Peregrines were so thin they broke under the weight of the parent while incubating. This effectively curtailed successful reproduction, population numbers declined dramatically, and the Peregrine Falcon was listed as an endangered species in 1970. Conservation efforts including captive breeding and a ban on DDT resulted in Peregrine population recovery and the bird was removed from the Endangered Species List in 1999. Peregrine Falcon recovery under requirements of the Endangered Species Act is considered another conservation success along with other birds affected by DDT contamination including Bald Eagles and Brown Pelicans.

SEABISCUIT

Drama

Starring:

*Tobey Maguire,
Jeff Bridges,
Chris Cooper*

This is the true story of a former bicycle repairman, Charles Howard who owned a small, knobby-kneed horse called Seabiscuit. Howard teamed up with a half-blind ex-boxing prize fighter, Red Pollard, who became the horse's jockey and a former "mustang breaker" Wild West performer called "The Lone Plainsman", Tom Smith, who became the horse's trainer. As the United States struggled through the Great Depression, people around the country followed with rapt interest of the Seabiscuit story, leading to his win of the Horse of the Year honors in 1938.
